Three faculties and one school (and their six departments) at the Urayasu Campus accept a number of international students: the Faculty of Languages and Cultures, Faculty of Economics, Faculty of Real Estate Sciences, and School of Hospitality & Tourism Management. The urban environment near central Tokyo offers a variety of educational opportunities to the students.

Faculties and Departments

Urayasu Campus, Near Central Tokyo

Faculty of Languages and Cultures

■ Department of Japanese

The training we provide produces Japanese language specialists who possess a deeper understanding of Japan's society and culture, as well as a combination of international sensibilities and erudition.

■ Department of English

Students acquire sophisticated, practical communication skills in classes that offer many opportunities for discussion and debate in English.

■ Department of Chinese

Providing thorough language training with a unique teaching system that focuses on speaking skills, students acquire practical Chinese language skills that can pass muster in international society.

Faculty of Economics

■ Department of Economics

Our training provides business professionals a means to survive the current global society, a high level of skills in the respective fields of public policy, finance, management, accounting, and financial affairs, as well as knowledge encompassing everything from local to international society.

Faculty of Real Estate Sciences

■ Department of Real Estate Sciences

This is the only faculty in Japan that produces real estate experts who possess expertise required in actual society through comprehensive real estate sciences studies involving the respective fields of economics, law, and design.

School of Hospitality & Tourism Management

■ Department of Hospitality & Tourism Management Global Management major (GMM)

We train leaders to handle a wide range of activities in global community, mainly in the hospitality and tourism industry.

Graduate Schools

- Graduate School of Applied Linguistics
- Graduate School of Economics
- Graduate School of Real Estate Sciences

The graduate schools impart advanced knowledge and skills. There are currently a lot of international students enrolled in these graduate schools, and the university encourages them to study with their Japanese counterparts.

Graduate Schools

Producing People with Advanced, Specialized Knowledge and Skills

Graduate School of Applied Linguistics

Applied linguistics, a field in which students study a broad range of topics related to language and human behavior, covers a variety of subjects, including foreign-language education, language and society, psychology, computers, literature, and culture. In addition to the three courses—language education, language theory, and language culture—this graduate school also offers programs on Japanese- and English-language education, among others.

- Degrees

Master's Program: Master's degree in applied linguistics or master's degree in Japanese-language education

Doctoral Program: Doctoral degree in applied linguistics or doctoral degree in Japanese-language education

Graduate School of Economics

This graduate school offers a multidisciplinary curriculum that covers both academic and practical areas in the discipline of economics, including international economics, development economics, welfare, population issues, tax laws, management and international accounting. To provide individual students with the fundamental, academic and practical courses they need to boost their level of specialization, we have secured a high number of experienced faculty members from all quarters. In addition, we have placed an emphasis on empirical analysis and computer literacy courses.

- Degrees

Master's Program: Master's degree in economics

Graduate School of Real Estate Sciences

This graduate school combines research findings from the individual fields of law, engineering, economics and business administration into a single field we call real estate sciences. It is the only program of its kind in Japan to comprehensively address topics ranging from real estate market analysis to urban and environmental construction. The school offers a wide range of highly specialized programs in the three subjects of real estate analysis, real estate policy, and the real estate business.

- Degrees

Master's Program: Master's degree in real estate sciences

Doctoral Program: Doctoral degree in real estate sciences

Special Japanese Language Course

The Special Japanese Language Course offers Japanese-language education aimed at enabling students to pursue higher education at a Japanese university or graduate school based on the concept of international exchange, which is set in the motto of this university.

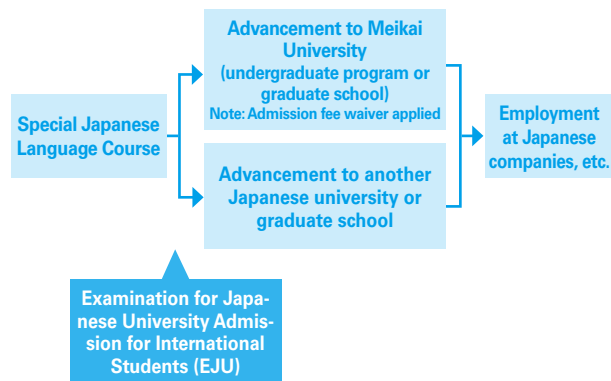

Special Japanese Language Course A University Open to the World

About the Special Japanese Language Course

The Special Japanese Language Course was established in 1991. It embodies the Meikai University spirit of international exchange and provides the kind of Japanese-language education that students need in order to pursue an education at the university level.

The major difference between this special course and an ordinary Japanese-language school is that the purpose of the former is to enable students to pursue higher education at the undergraduate and graduate school level in Japan. Students who complete one year of this program can pursue an undergraduate or graduate school education at Meikai University or any other national, public, or private university or graduate school in Japan.

Model Case of Advancement to Higher Education

Persons accepted into a Meikai University undergraduate faculty/school or graduate school after passing the Special Japanese Language course will be exempt from paying the admission fee (¥230,000 for undergraduate faculties/schools, ¥200,000 for graduate schools; excluding the School of Dentistry and the Graduate School of Dentistry). In addition, persons who pass level N1 of the Japanese-Language Proficiency Test will receive an exemption from their first year of tuition (¥698,000; excluding the School of Dentistry and the Graduate School of Dentistry).

Special Features

- Classes Divided into Small Groups by Skill Level
Breaking the class up by skill level ensures that lessons can be specifically tailored to students and conducted as efficiently as possible.
- Practical Curriculum
The course offers a practical curriculum, the ultimate goal of which is to enable students to continue their education at a Japanese university.
- Enrollment by Recommendation
Students who excel in their studies can enroll in Meikai University (Faculty of Languages and Cultures, Faculty of Economics, Faculty of Real Estate Sciences, or School of Hospitality & Tourism Management) by recommendation.
- Interaction with Japanese Students
Various event programs to promote interaction and experiences with Japanese language and culture are organized, including activities with students of the Faculty of Languages and Cultures.

Number of International Students in the Special Course

Note: Figures are as of May 1, 2018.

Meikai University has accepted international students from the following countries and regions.

Vietnam: 47; China: 6; Sri Lanka: 4; Mongolia: 4; Taiwan: 3; South Korea: 1; Thailand: 1; Bangladesh: 1; Hong Kong: 1; Macau: 1
Total: 69

Scholarships

- Meikai University Toyoko Toyoda Scholarship
This scholarship was established using donations from Toyoko Toyoda, a professor emeritus who previously taught classes on Japanese affairs as part of the Special Japanese Language Course. The scholarship is awarded through a selection process to candidates who want to continue their higher education but need financial assistance, who have demonstrated their academic ambitions and achieved excellent grades, and who have a high rate of attendance. The scholarship period is six months. The monthly scholarship is ¥50,000. In the 2018 academic year, this scholarship was awarded to four students in the special course.
- Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology Scholarships for International Students
Through a selection process, the Japan Student Services Organization (JASSO) offers scholarships to individuals who demonstrate excellence in school work and personal character and require financial aid to continue their studies in Japan.
(1) Scholarship amount:
Students in the special course: ¥48,000/month (for one year)
(2) Number of students in the special course who qualified in the 2018 academic year: 1

Curriculum Well-Rounded Curriculum

Curriculum

The goal of this course is to bring students' Japanese-language skills up to the level required for taking classes at the undergraduate or graduate school level. It is designed for international students who are hoping to enroll in a university or graduate school program.

Furthermore, by enhancing students' understanding of Japanese culture and society, this program aims to help improve their quality of life and ability to communicate while living in Japan.

Japanese Language

Systematic Japanese-language education is provided based on each student's level of Japanese. The curriculum aims to help students perform well on the Examination for Japanese University Admission for International Students (EJU), which measures the skills that are needed for admission to a university.

- Grammar
- Kanji/hiragana/katakana and vocabulary
- Oral expression
- Listening comprehension
- Reading comprehension
- Written expression

Liberal Arts

By teaching a broad range of subjects, including Japanese geography, industry, history, and current affairs, this course aims to give students a more in-depth understanding of Japan.

- Japanese affairs

General Education

The course offers classes on subjects that are on the EJU and university entrance exams.

- English (*)
- Mathematics
- Society

Note: Although not an EJU subject, English-language study is essential because it may be assessed during entrance exams, and many universities make it a compulsory subject after enrollment.

Education Staff

Highly experienced instructors are passionate about their work and offer thorough student guidance.

Study Support Program for International Students

This study support program is designed to boost study effectiveness and enhance the employability of international students.

Target: Students accepted to the university after passing the Special Entrance Exam for International Students

Enrichment and Enhancement of Japanese-Language Studies

The Japanese-language studies program for international students has been enriched to improve the effectiveness of studying at this university.

Key points

- ◆ Participation in this class is now mandatory, and will be conducted on an intensive basis during the first year following enrollment.
- ◆ Classes are small (around twenty students per class). Students are divided into classes based on their Japanese-language proficiency level and whether they come from a country that uses Chinese characters.
- ◆ There will be study support staff, mainly students enrolled in the Department of Japanese, to provide intensive instruction outside of classes.

Japanese-language courses for international students aiming for JLPT Level N1

Course name	Schedule	Credits	Total class hours
Academic Japanese I	One class/week; entire first year	2	60
Academic Japanese II	One class/week; entire first year	2	60
